

Our common River Eurajoki

– with small steps towards better condition of the river

The objective of the project is to facilitate the sustainable utilization of River Eurajoki, and to prepare actions which improve the quality of water and the riverside's environment. Also, social information on the relationship between man and river is collected in co-operation with local residents.

The three main lines of activity in the project are:

- continuous monitoring of water quality using unattended water quality sondes
- forming a long term restoration plan for River Eurajoki
- constructing a map-based website where quantitative and qualitative data on water and environmental quality and social information are presented and stored.
